Sunday of the Expulsion of Adam from Paradise

By Fr. Lawrence Farley

This last of the pre-Lenten Sundays is also called Cheesefare Sunday, since dairy is allowed on this final day before the fast. Often the Rite of Mutual Forgiveness is appended to the Sunday service, so that it is also called Forgiveness Sunday.

The gospel for the day is from Matthew's Sermon on the Mount, and it focuses on the right way to fast. We are to guard our hearts, so that our motivation for fasting is to please God, not to garner the applause of men. We must take all care not to flaunt our fasting before the eyes of the world—or the Church—as if their approval were paramount. For it is not. All that matters is that God sees our efforts and our hearts. We offer our appetites and efforts to Him to win His approval. Our abstinence from foods is the expression of our penitence; it is how we cry out to Him, "Have mercy on me, a transgressor, O merciful Lord!" It is God who will see our secret penitence and give us our reward.
